Outcomes:

- Students became more confident and expressive, particularly those new to public platforms.
- JAM and Pick-a-Chit events sharpened on-the-spot thinking, vocabulary, and time management.
- Stand-up Comedy brought a refreshing sense of humour, relieving academic stress and boosting creativity.
- Elocution helped students develop well-structured arguments and polished delivery styles.
- Group Discussions enhanced team dynamics, active listening, and respectful disagreement.
- Students from various branches interacted and bonded, strengthening inter-departmental friendships.
- Several students discovered new talents in public speaking, humor, and critical reasoning.
- Faculty members observed improved communication skills and enthusiasm among participants.
- The two-day event promoted English fluency, stage skills, and confidence among even first-time speakers.

Summary:

The co-curricular events held on 6th and 7th May 2025 at Ellenki College of Engineering and Technology brought together creativity, communication, and confidence on one dynamic platform. With events like Just a Minute, Stand-up Comedy, Elocution, Group Discussion, and Pick-a-Chit, students had the opportunity to engage, express, and enjoy. These activities not only entertained but also served as essential learning moments—improving language fluency, public speaking confidence, team spirit, and critical thinking. The cheerful and inclusive atmosphere during these two days encouraged even shy students to take the mic. Overall, the events contributed significantly to the holistic growth of students and reinforced Ellenki's commitment to developing well-rounded engineers with strong communication skills and creative confidence.
